CIRCULAR.

Downing Street, 20th August, 1889.

SIR,—With reference to the Earl of Carnarvon's Circular despatch of the 3rd of September, 1875, I have the honor to acquaint you that it has been decided that the Superannuation Act, 1859, does not allow of a pension being granted thereunder in any circumstances whatever to an officer of the Civil Service retiring from public employment under the age of 60 years, except on the ground of ill-health or of abolition of office.

Officers who have been transferred from the Imperial Civil Service to the Civil Service of a Colony in which the pensionable age is less than 60 years, should therefore be given to understand that, on their retirement from Colonial service, the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury will not be able to award them pensions in respect of their Imperial service under the Act of 1859 if that retirement takes place under 60 years of age, unless it be for one of the two reasons above mentioned.

I have, &c.,
KNUTSFORD.

The Officer Administering
the Government of Western Australia.
