- 5. (1) Any person requiring a licence to erect an aerial of a height greater than the prescribed height shall make written application therefor to the Council.
 - (2) An application shall be accompanied by—
 - (a) a block plan showing the position of all buildings in relation to the boundaries of the land on which and the position in which the aerial is to be erected;
 - (b) a plan setting out the details of the aerial, method by which it is to be erected or affixed on or to any building or the soil and of all supporting guy wires; and
 - (c) a specification.
- 6. Upon the granting of a licence, pursuant to by-law 4 of these by-laws, the grantee shall pay to the Council a fee of one dollar.
- 7. A person erecting an aerial, whether of a height greater than the prescribed height or not, shall comply with the following rules, that is to say:—

(1) Design and Construction.—Aerials and their supporting structures shall be designed and installed in accordance with good engineering practice and they shall be capable of withstanding dead loads, stray loads due to wind pressure, vibrations caused by wind pressure fluctuations, and live loads due to ice and snow to which the area might be subjected.

(2) Galvanising.—Aerials and their supporting structures, including bases, stays, turnbuckles, and other appurtenances, shall be inherently corrosion-resistant or shall be rendered corrosion-resistant by galvanising or other equivalent means. (5) Clearances from Telephone and Power Lines.—Aerials and their lead-in conductors shall be located to meet the following requirements in respect of overhead trunk telephone lines and overhead power lines, namely—

(a) lead-in conductors shall not cross over or under overhead power lines, except that they may pass under service and consumers' lines where precautions have been taken to prevent them from coming into accidental contact with those lines;

(b) aerials and their lead-in conductors shall be kept well clear of all overhead power lines, except that where proximity cannot be avoided, and subject to the requirements of paragraph (a) of this rule, the aerial installation shall provide the following minimum clearances:—

1.8 metres in the case of circuits not exceeding a nominal 250 volts to earth; and three metres in the case of circuits exceeding 250 volts to earth;

(c) the extremities of the lead-in conductor shall be securely anchored to avoid accidental contact with overhead power lines in the event of breakage of the lead-in conductor; alternatively, the lead-in conductor shall be suspended from a steel cable anchored beyond a hazardous zone of the overhead line.

(6) Clearances from Lightning Protection Systems.—The clearance between lead-in conductors and any conductor forming part of a lightning protection system of the building or structure (other than the aerial lightning protection system itself if required) shall be not less than 1.8 metres, except that this clearance need not be provided for an aerial lightning protection system which is earthed by the method described in subparagraph (iii) of paragraph (b) of rule (11) of these rules.

(7) Limitation on Height.—No aerial mounted on a roof, parapet wall or chimney shall, without the express approval of the Council, extend more than 3 metres above the last point of attachment nor more than 3 metres above the ridge of the roof of the building on which it is erected or, in the case of a flat roof, more than 3.7 metres above the surface thereof or, in the case of a skillion roof, more than 3.7 metres above the highest portion thereof. In the case of a flat or skillion roof the aerial shall be stayed in accordance with rule (10) of these rules.

(8) Mountings on buildings shall comply with the following requirements, namely:—

(a) General.—Aerials having a free length greater than 3 metres, other than those of the self-supporting type, shall be stayed in accordance with rule (10) of these rules.

(b) Vent Pipes.—Aerials shall not be mounted on, or in any way braced by, vent pipes, flue pipes, or similar structures.

(c) On Chimneys.—

(i) An aerial installed on a chimney shall be securely attached by metal strapping or lashing embracing the periphery of the chimney and where wire rope, or ribbon or strapping less than 20 millimetres wide is used for attachment of brackets, the chimney shall be protected by suitable corner pieces.

- (ii) Multiple lashings (two or more) shall be used for aerials where the total projected area (i.e., length x diameter) of the receiving elements exceeds 840 square centimetres.
 - (iii) The top lashing, in the case of multiple lashings, and any single lashing shall not be mounted higher than the course of bricks 305 millimetres from the top of the chimney.
 - (iv) Brackets shall be mounted as low as possible, but not below the tray or apron.
- (d) On Roofs.—An aerial installed on a roof shall be mounted on a base or fixture of adequate size securely anchored to the roof.
- (e) On Brick Walls.—
- (i) An aerial may be mounted on a 230 mm wall or 275 mm cavity wall, if securely attached by suitable mounting brackets; where more than one bracket is used they shall be spaced at a vertical distance of not less than 305 mm and the top mounting hole of any bracket shall not be less than 305 mm from the top of the wall.
 - (ii) The mounting bolt shall be of the expansion type or its equivalent and shall be mechanically locked in the brickwork.
- (f) On Weatherboard and Fibro Walls.—
- (i) Where aerials are installed on walls of timber-framed structures, attachment shall be made directly to the studding or structure, but if direct attachment is not feasible, wooden cleats shall be fastened to the studding and the mast brackets shall be securely fastened to the cleats with suitable bolts.
 - (ii) The minimum size of timber used for fixing mounting brackets shall be not less than 75 mm x 50 mm; coach bolts shall not be used in the end grain of timber used, and bolts with suitable backing plates shall be used wherever practicable.
 - (iii) The base of the mast shall extend a minimum of 610 mm below the edge or roof line with attachments as near the roof line as possible and also at the bottom extremity of the mast.
 - (iv) The free length of the supporting mast shall not exceed 3 metres unless the mast is stayed in accordance with rule (10) of these rules.
- (9) A mounting, not on a building, shall comply with the following requirements, namely:—
- (a) Staying.—Ground-supported aerials, if not designed to be self-supporting, shall be stayed in accordance with rule (10) of these rules and the base of the supporting structure shall rest on a suitable foundation of concrete, rock, aggregate, or like material.
 - (b) Wood Preservative.—Wooden poles may be used as masts if the portion in contact with the ground is adequately treated with a satisfactory wood preservative.
 - (c) Steps.—Pole steps shall not be installed closer than 2.3 metres from the ground or any readily accessible place.
- (10) Staying, where required, shall comply with the following requirements, namely:—
- (a) Stay Wires.—Staying shall be by three or more equally spaced wires for the first 6 metres of mast length; sets of stay wires shall be installed for each additional section of the mast or at such intervals as will ensure the rigidity of the structure for all types of aerials.
 - (b) Diameter of Stay Wires.—Stay wires shall be of galvanised steel and not smaller in cross-section than 8.5 mm² (711.25 mm), or shall be of other corrosion-resistant metal of equivalent strength.
 - (c) Attachment.—The attachment of stays to anchors, aerials, turnbuckles, or other fastenings shall be made with adequate guy thimbles or the equivalent.
 - (d) Anchor Screws.—In the case of roof aerial stays, anchor screws shall be securely fastened to rafters, beams, or other substantial framing member of the structure; for ground aerial stays, the anchor screws shall be securely fastened to a substantial support, and shall not be attached to trees, fence posts, or the like.
 - (e) Turnbuckles.—Turnbuckles shall comply with B.S.716-1958, Rigging Screws and Stretching Screws for General Engineering Purposes.

(11) Earthing shall comply with the following requirements, namely:—

- (a) General.—Metal structures supporting aerials shall be permanently and effectively earthed.
- (b) Conductors.—The earthing conductor shall be not smaller than 4 mm² (710.85 mm) copper, or shall have equivalent current-carrying capacity if of material other than copper, and shall be run in a line as straight as possible from the aerial mast to the point of connection to earth, and the connection to earth shall be made by one of the following methods, that is to say:—
 - (i) by direct connection to the earth electrode or system of electrodes to which the electrical installation earthing system is connected (preferred method);
 - (ii) by direct connection to an earth electrode or electrodes complying with rule 526 of A.S. No. CC. 1-1961, Part I, SAA Wiring Rules, and separated from the electrical installation earthing and any lightning protection system for the building on which the aerial is mounted by a distance of not less than 1.8 metres;
 - (iii) by direct connection to any part of a lightning protection system for the building on which the aerial is mounted.
- (c) Joints.—Joints in earthing conductors shall be made by soldering or by mechanical clamping, and where mechanical clamping is used the conductors shall be twisted together and clamped between metal surfaces either by means of a bolt and nut with washers so constructed and arranged as to prevent spreading of the conductor strands, or by means of not less than two screws, according to the form of connector used.
- (d) Clearance.—
 - (i) If the connection to earth is made by the method in subparagraph (i) of paragraph (b) of this rule a minimum clearance of a 1.8 metres shall be maintained between all parts of the aerial earthing system and lightning protection system for the building on which the aerial is mounted.
 - (ii) Where the connection is made by the method in subparagraph (ii) or (iii) of paragraph (b) of this rule a minimum clearance of 1.8 metres shall be maintained between the aerial earthing system and all parts of the electrical installation and its earthing system except the aerial lead-in conductor.
- (e) Lightning Arresters.—Where the insulation of aerial elements from the mast or supporting boom is such that the elements can accumulate a static charge, the use of a suitable lightning arrester is acceptable, if earthed by one of the methods described in paragraph (b) of this rule.

8. A person who commits a breach of any of the provisions of these by-laws is liable on conviction to a penalty not exceeding forty dollars.

9. The Construction of Television Masts and Antennae (Uniform General) By-laws 1974 made under the provisions of the Local Government Act 1960-1973 and published in the Government Gazette on 20 December 1974, as amended, are repealed.
